Tá sé tábhachtach do thuismitheoirí breathnú ar an obair agus an dialann/ leabhar nóta a shíniú (Féach Cód Iompair 4.5)

Homework Policy

Aim

- The purpose of homework is to reinforce work done in school and to allow children the opportunity to work independently.

Homework

1. Infant Classes

Junior Infants

- A small book containing pictures and the letter of the week will be sent home with the children.
From time to time, other worksheets or a maths booklet will be given for homework to reinforce work completed in school.
It is also recommended that websites promoting educational, fun activities through Irish should be used at home for example www.leighleat.com

Senior Infants

- In Senior Infants emphasis is placed on reading.
In September, Irish reading is sent home while English reading commences in January and is included along with Irish reading for homework.
From time to time, writing or maths homework will be given to reinforce work covered in school.
- Of course, there are many other activities which can be done at home which will support children especially those in the junior classes. Such activities include reading stories, reciting nursery rhymes and use of crayons, paint and scissors to develop fine motor skills.

2. Remaining Classes

- Pupils should be able to do the work without difficulty but it is recommended that parents be available in the event that help is required. It is important that the work is checked and signed by the parent either in the homework journal or in the note book/ sheet (Reference Code of Behaviour 4.5)
- If the child has difficulty understanding any part of the homework, the parent should inform the teacher by means of a note. The teacher can then revise the topic in class.
- Generally, homework is not given at the weekend.
